International Day of Forest-2025

Online Quiz Competition on the theme “Forest and Food”

21 March was declared the International Day of Forest (IDF) by the United Nations General Assembly in the year 2012 to celebrate and raise awareness about the vital role of forests. CSIR-National Botanical Research Institute's (NBRI) EIACP PC-RP organized an exciting online quiz competition event to celebrate the IDF-2025, on this year's theme, "Forest and Food," to promote the role of forests in providing food and mitigating the environmental crisis.

The objective of this online quiz is to raise environmental awareness and educate participants about the importance of forests. Forests, are the pillars of global food security, nutrition, and livelihoods of millions of families. They provide essential foods such as fruits, seeds, roots and wild meat, fundamental resources for indigenous and rural communities. Forests also play an important role in mitigating environmental crisis. This quiz competition aims to test participants' understanding of the environmental, economic, and social aspects of the forest.

The online quiz competition was a resounding success, fostering awareness and engagement among young learners on the theme "Forest and Food." The event not only celebrated the International Day of Forests but also reinforced the significance of preserving forests for a sustainable future.

Apart from the quiz competition, an infographic poster representing the theme of International Day of Forest-2025 was also designed by NBRI-EIACP. This infographic highlighted the total forest cover area around the globe and the total forest cover and tree cover in India. This infographic provides valuable knowledge related to the Indian states having the maximum increase in forest cover till 2023, the role of forests in mitigating the environmental crisis, CO₂ sequestration, and various food products obtained from forests and to promote environmental awareness and sustainability under #Mission LiFE initiative for a greener and more responsible future.
